

TAMARA (to UT TOM and DEE) So seriously, what are you two talking about?

UT TOM Life, love, the Bible, penguins. Lots of boring stuff.

TAMARA I listened to James Earl Jones Reads the Bible twice before I gave it to Dee. But here's my beef with James Earl Jones Reads the Bible: why are all the women either virgins or whores?

UT TOM I think it's just a metaphor.

TAMARA So they're not really virgins?

UT TOM No, I guess they really are, but –

TAMARA In the Bible, everyone is either a virgin or a whore when in the real world it's always more complicated than that.

(UT TOM laughs) Is something funny to you?

UT TOM I didn't say anything.

TAMARA "Let him who is without sin, cast the first stone."

UT TOM You're drunk.

TAMARA So what? I'm not perfect. And neither are you.

(to ACE) Or you.

(to DEE) Or you.

(to UT TIM) Or you.

UT TIM (trying to get her to be quiet) Tamara –

TAMARA (to UT TIM) Tell him. Please tell him.

(to UT TOM) Tim and I are in love with each other. But he's too afraid to tell you. He can't sleep at night worrying about what you think of him.

(to UT TIM) Why do you care what he thinks? Everyone thinks he's a joke – that he keeps coming back because he's in love with Pam. But Pam just wants to fuck him. And Tom is too much of a joke to move on. Why do you need his approval?

PAM (to TAMARA) How long have you been here – five minutes? We've been coming to the Ice since you were in diapers – so shut the fuck up.

TAMARA (to PAM and UT TOM) You two are so sad. How did you get to be so sad?
